FMQAI has the following Internet privacy policy: FMQAI does not collect personally identifiable information, i.e., name, social security number, email address, from our web site unless we specifically advise you of the request. You may visit our web site without giving any personally identifiable information. We will not obtain personally identifiable information about you when you visit our site, unless you choose to provide such information and you will be notified explicitly when such information is requested and about its exclusive purpose.

We may collect personally identifiable information only if specifically and knowingly provided by you. Any personally identifiable information requested by FMQAI, i.e., contact name, address, phone or fax number, or email address, is protected by our confidentiality policy. This information is used solely by FMQAI for the information or service you requested (i.e., online registration for events or request for information by regular mail or fax) and we will protect the personal information that you share with us.

Note: Electronic mail is not secure against interception. If your communication is confidential or sensitive, please send it by US mail instead. Do not send confidential information to FMQAI via email.

FMQAI does, however, collect some non-personally identifiable information, i.e., IP address (Internet protocol address; this number is automatically assigned by your Internet service provider each time you log on to the Internet) of the site visitor, the type of browser you are using (Netscape, Internet Explorer, etc), date and time of access, pages visited, and files downloaded. This information is temporarily kept and used in aggregate for statistical purposes such as to update our web site, assess its functionality, visibility, and performance. This non-personally identifiable information is not permanently retained nor is it sold, disclosed, shared, given or transferred to any third party. Any changes or updates to our policy will be posted on our main web page.

Note: Cookies are short pieces of text written either temporarily or permanently by web servers to a user's computer to help identify the user. Cookies cannot be used to execute code or carry viruses.

FMQAI does not use cookies to track users browsing history or personal information stored on their computers. FMQAI does use cookies from WebTrends software to track return visits to our website if the visitor's browser accepts the cookie. For more information about cookies see Microsoft Product Documentation at the following website: http://www.microsoft.com/resources/documentation/windows/xp/all/proddocs/en-us/sec_cook.msp
